The Making of Health Policies

Universal Healthcare Coverage ≠ Access: Case Study in Taiwan

Elisabeth Gilmore, National Taiwan University

Abstract: Although Taiwan has very comprehensive UHC policies, vulnerable groups may still fall through the cracks. A literature review was conducted to evaluate whether NHI policy eliminates barriers to healthcare access for PEH. Preliminary evidence points to the existence of non-coverage barriers to healthcare for PEH, and likely other vulnerable groups. This case study may demonstrate that UHC is not a cure-all for vulnerable groups' access to healthcare issues.
